By TOM KISKEN

and JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE - County and federal loans may be available to local landlords who wish to rehabilitate their property.

Sherri Jones, of the Palm Beach County Housing and Community Development, outlined the county's multi-family rental rehabilitation program to landlords at a special meeting Tuesday at the Belle Glade City Hall.

The county, through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, is offering local landlords a variety of rehabilitative loans if they meet qualifications.

"Even though I might not be able to help all of you, maybe I can help some of you," Jones told some 15 landlords at the meeting.

She added a few properties which will qualify for the program have already been selected.

Through the program, already in existence on the coastal section of the county, landlords would be eligible for a maximum of a $10,000 loan per dwelling in a multi-unit building. Single dwelling units will be eligible for up to $18,500.

The money for the rehabilitation program will come either all from HUD, or a mixture of HUD and private funds provided by the landlord.

Interest rates, which vary from five, seven or nine percent, would be lower for those landlords who provide some private funds.

The county is working with the Belle Glade Housing Authority on the rehabilitation program and interested applicants should contact Gladys Ganzy, administrative assistant with the city's Department of Planning and Community Development. Applications should be turned in by this Friday.

All applications will be reviewed by Jones. She said she would look at each case on its individual merits.

In order to qualify for a loan, at least 40 percent of the requested rehabilitation work must be to correct building code violations. The remaining 40 percent may go toward general property improvements.

A barrier in assisting local landlords could be the large number of rooming houses in the area, Jones said. The county would rather take on apartment rehabilitations, although some conversions of rooming houses into apartment houses could be available, she said.

Landlords in the audience told Jones the majority of housing which needed rehabilitation were rooming houses.

"When you pass 20-Mile Bend, you come into a different country," landlord James Martin said of the difference between local and coastal housing.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 26, 1984

BELLE GLADE-PAHOKEE, FL.

PALM BEACH COUNTY'S legislative delegation sits at the Belle Glade city commission chambers during its Glades meeting Wednesday, January 18.

Delegation objects to Koehler's charge

By BRENDA BUNTING

BELLE GLADE - Members of the Palm Beach County Legislative Delegation re-emphasized their commitment to four-laning SR 80 at a meeting in Belle Glade City Hall Wednesday, January 18.

Addressing statements made by Palm Beach County Expressway Authority Chairman Dennis Koehler at a Tri-City League meeting last week, Representative Ray Liberti said he took "some offense at being accused of not having any commitment. The integrity of this delegation is unquestionable."

State Senator Don Childers and Representatives James Watt and Frank Messersmith were also present at the delegation meeting.

Koehler said at the Tri-City League meeting Monday, January 16 that the delegation lacked enthusiasm and clout in efforts to get U.S. 27 four-laned from South Bay to the Broward County line.

"I think for the first time since I've been a part of this delegation, we are seeing a commitment to state road 80," Senator Childers said.

Childers and Liberti noted they and other legislators met with Gov. Bob Graham and state Secretary of Transportation Paul Pappas a year ago and received their commitments to four-lane state road 80.

They recalled that at that time funds were transferred from U.S. 27 four-laning funds to state road 80.

Later, in a luncheon hosted by the Western Palm Beach County Farm Bureau, Childers said he thought the kind of comments made by Koehler could have only a negative impact.

South Bay City Commissioner Rennick Morris addressed the delegation following the statements made by the delegation members concerning the four-laning of SR 80.

He said he was glad to hear the delegation was still committed to the work on SR 80 and he would report the information back to members of the South Bay City Commission.

Chamber may plan pre-season festival

By TOM KISKEN

PAHOKEE - Pahokee Chamber of Commerce directors hope to bring an annual autumn festival to town this year.

A committee was formed in Monday's meeting of directors which will make recommendations on the type of festival, date and name at the chamber's next regular meeting, Feb. 6.

In other chamber news, directors voted to hold a July 4 Freedom Festival, but to limit its scope.

Also the chamber's annual dinner will be this Friday, at 7:30 p.m., in the Lake Club.

Chamber President James Bennett said that while the idea of an annual festival has been kicked around often in the past, directors plan to actually do something this year.

"Such a festival would greatly help the community. It would draw many people to the area," Bennett said.

Noting directors have about nine months to work with, Bennett said there is no excuse for not having a well-planned fest.

The central theme of the event should be connected with farming, directors agreed.

Lynda Moss said a mother had suggested October as a good time because of the nice weather and increased number of people in the area.

J. Ray Hatton II said directors should consider a celebration for the beginning of the harvest event, pointing out the Black Gold Jubilee celebrates the end of harvest.

Members of the annual fest committee are: Dale Milita, John Pender, Ted Gallo, R.D. Santerfeit, Lucy Baines and Hatton.

Directors voted to limit the scope of the Freedom Festival, noting the hot mid-summer weather and the large percentage of residents vacationing at that time.

They set a schedule which will have festivities beginning at 4 p.m. and fireworks at 9 p.m.

Bennett said directors should investigate the possibility of selling ground space for booths at the event.

A committee named at Monday's meeting has been charged with developing and presenting comprehensive recommendations on the Freedom Festival at the Feb. 6 meeting. Members of the committee include: John Pender, James Bennett, Julia Johnson, Lynda Moss and Mike Poza.

Director Diane Hall said plans for Friday's annual dinner are going well.

The featured speaker will be Jack Taylor of St. Louis, who proclaims himself to be the mayor of the fictitious town, Whoopup, Mo.

Taylor, a former reporter with the Associated Press and newspapers in Illinois and Missouri, will give a humorous speech on politics and small town life.

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER Sam Lovell addressed the the level of educational standards in the local school system. Lovell questioned

Portables not worth money says Lovell

By BRENDA BUNTING

BELLE GLADE - Portable school rooms aren't worth the cost and money spent on these rooms should be used instead to create permanent classrooms.

That's what Palm Beach County School Board member Sam Lovell told the Palm Beach County Legislative Delegation Wednesday, Jan. 18 in Belle Glade.

Lovell said he was speaking as an individual in asking the legislators to support easing construction standards to reduce the cost of the portable units used at local schools.

Lovell said the cost of the portables was increasing primarily due to requirements that the buildings be able to withstand winds of 120 miles per hour.

"I don't know any of you, or myself, who is going to keep their children in a plywood shack during a hurricane," Lovell said.

"I'd rather we double up on students, as we have done in the past, rather than put them in portables."

Lovell said the state requirement that portables be able to withstand hurricane winds is only three or four years old and was written by bureaucrats, not legislators.

State Senator Don Childers said that at the average cost of $50 to $75 per square foot, the school board might be better off building permanent facilities.

He recommended school board officials attend the delegation's next general meeting

Waste water woes deepen at Pahokee

PAHOKEE - Pahokee's wastewater problems regular meeting Tuesday night.

Failure to correct action, the letter stated, "will result in Enforcement Action being taken by this Department."

In addition the DER asked that a letter be submitted by Thursday, Feb. 9 which should include: explanation of the high effluent concentration being discharged; a status report on the city's inflow-infiltration program; a schedule of corrective actions at the treatment plant; and a list of corrective actions to improve the plant's self-monitoring program.

Some 10 additional deficiencies were listed in the letter.

Cross told commissioners most of the deficiencies noted in the letter were repeated from earlier communication and were not new concerns.

Some of the problems have already been taken care of, while the high lake level, insufficient equipment and manpower prohibit the resolution of other concerns, according to Cross.

The letter is the second notification of wastewater problems within a month that the city has received. Early this month the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services served formal notice that the treatment plant is in violation with both state and county laws.

Padgett may support altered city manager concept

PAHOKEE - Pahokee Mayor Duncan Padgett, a vocal opponent in the past to proposals to bring a city manager type of government to Pahokee, may support an altered version of the city manager concept.

James Bennett, president of the Pahokee Chamber of Commerce, asked the council at its meeting Tuesday night, January 24 why it couldn't write a city manager into the charter and retain an elected mayor, city clerk and city marshall. He said that seems to be what most voters were opposed to when they narrowly defeated a city manager proposal in a straw poll in October 1983.

"I could support that," said Padgett.

Bennett said those who favor a city manager type of established in the city. The council will be considering the city manager question Tuesday, January 31 when it meets in workshop at 5:30 p.m. Council members decided last October to pursue the city manager question despite the results of the straw poll.

Pahokee Chamber of Commerce polling members

PAHOKEE - The Pahokee Chamber of Commerce board of directors is polling its members with a questionnaire designed to guide the chamber in its community activities.

The results of the 12-question poll will be made public after members have turned in their copies, according to James Bennett, president of the board.

The questionnaire doesn't confine itself to the chamber's role in the community, however. It also addresses issues such as the proposed new high school on Laramore Road and the Pahokee Marina Development Corporation's plans to improve the Pahokee harbor area. The questions include:

- Are you in favor of developing the marina and state park along the river proposed by the Pahokee Development Corporation?
- Do you like the present plans for construction of a new high school/middle school on Laramore Road?
- Should the chamber work to ensure that city ordinances, where transient salespeople

- and street vendors are concerned, are enforced and that appropriate fees have been paid and proper licensing has been obtained?
- Do you favor a city manager for the City of Pahokee?
- Should an industrial development commission be formed to investigate ways of attracting light industry into our area?

- Do you favor Proposition One?
- Do you feel the quality of city water should be improved?
- Do you feel the Chamber of Commerce has been supportive enough of local business?
- Do you feel the chamber should get involved in a "Clean-up Pahokee" type program?
- Should an on-going educational program on "shop-at-home" be undertaken to stop the flow of local shoppers to other cities?
- Would you favor a requirement that would have out-of-town door-to-door sales persons register with the chamber prior to their canvassing?
- Would you favor the formation of a Better Business Bureau?

- responses were all mostly favorable on all the proposals but Proposition One.
- The questionnaire will be used to guide the board of directors during 1984, said Bennett.
- Bennett, who took over as the chamber's president at the start of the year, said the activities won't be completed until after the questionnaires have been returned and evaluated.
- While one part of the chamber is polling its members with the questionnaire, another committee, headed by Julia Johnson, is trying to build membership.
- Johnson told the board that she hopes to have an alphabetical listing of potential new members by the middle of this week. She asked the board members to review the list and contact anyone they feel could sign up as a new member.

Those left over will be contacted by non-board members, she said.

chamber when they actually aren't.

He said something needs to be done in the by-laws to allow the chamber to recapture the plaques from former members.

Johnson asked if it was fair for individuals who own several businesses to pay for an individual $15 membership instead of $50 memberships for each member business.

Bennett said that matter may also have to be looked and the by-laws possibly revised.

Council opposed to county proposal

PAHOKEE - The Pahokee City Council is opposed to a county proposal which would take about $1,600 off the city tax rolls.

The plan involves using the old Glade & Grove facility as a county motor vehicle servicing facility.

The property would be sold to the county and would thus be immune to city taxes.

The city currently collects $1,584 in property taxes on the building annually.

Tuesday night, January 24, the city council asked City Attorney Mike Stauder to prepare a resolution opposing the proposal.

That proposal will be considered at an adjourned session tonight at 5:30.

"It's not gonna offer any more jobs in Pahokee," said Councilman Walter Rasley.

In other business,

- Decided to advertise for bids on a computer system for the city and a stainless steel water tank for one of the city fire pumps.

- Appointed nine members to the city Code Enforcement Board. The nine members have to meet to determine which of the six will serve as regular members and which three as alternates.

The nine members will be Murray Brinson, David Fountain, J. Ray Hutton II, Lucy Baines, Mike Poza, Julia Johnson, David Simonson, Tom Housch and Barney Walker.

- Hired a new fireman, Dennis E. Hodges, 28, of 279 Anna Avenue in Pahokee, will start his job at an annual salary of $13,700.

Upon completion of a firefighter course later this year, that would be increased to $14,700.

- Agreed to match up to $1,000 in any funds raised by a local women's club for replacing city Christmas decorations.

Fall festival sounds like good idea

The Pahokee Chamber of Commerce is apparently going to "limit" the July 4 Freedom Festival to a late afternoon get-together on the dike and evening fireworks in an effort to concentrate on a larger festival in the autumn.

One member of the Chamber's board of directors suggested the festival be timed to celebrate the beginning of the harvest season since Belle Glade's Black Gold Jubilee is a celebration of the end of his harvest.

Those ideas are excellent.

As many directors noted, July weather in Florida is always hot and unpredictable. The heat makes it miserable for those attending through the day and the chances of a thunder storm spoiling the fireworks after the long wait are big.

Limiting the festivities to the late afternoon after it starts to cool off and individuals have a chance to see what the weather will be like can't hurt the festival.

The autumn festival would be unique. Most festivals in the area are in the spring and by the time April and the Black Gold Jubilee end, many people probably don't care to attend another festival for several months.

But an early autumn festival, just prior to the opening of the sugar mills, will provide people an opportunity for one last fling before the season brings its long and hard work weeks.

School students will have a weekend of recreational activities just after they return to the drudgery of the classroom and books.

Chamber President James Bennett pointed out that the two festivals have the added benefit of providing the chamber with two good money makers if they are handled correctly.

The Chamber should pursue the idea of a "limited" Freedom Festival and an autumn festival. Start planning both events now. They will only be a success, if some time and effort is put into them.

HUD aid can't help if landlords don't apply

There are rehabilitative programs offered by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development that are just waiting to be taken advantage of by landlords.

These programs involve low interest loans that can be used to bring housing units up to code or even to upgrade the units.

If it sounds like there's a hitch, well, there is. The successful applicants must comply with HUD regulations.

That may not sound like too much to ask, since it's HUD's program. But many HUD regulations are written with other areas in mind.

The Glades are unique and offers special problems that may prevent some local landlords from qualifying for the program.

Even county rehabilitative officer with jurisdiction over the program in Palm Beach County said she may not be able to help everyone here.

But she did say she may be able to help some. And she intimated the regulations may not be too strictly adhered to.

Belle Glade landlords in attendance when the program was discussed shouldn't be too discouraged. They may qualify for a loan if they want one and we urge them to apply.

The application is free and if they are successful, they may be able to help improve the housing situation in the city.

Don't let the possibility of being denied a chance to participate keep you from trying.

If the situation is that unique here, it couldn't hurt to have several landlords with similar problems applying for, and being denied, the loans.

A track-record like that could urge some bureaucrat somewhere to draft a program suited for the Glades.

Sewage problems need attention

The Pahokee city council had better start working on repairing the problems at its waste water plant.

The problems are building and if action isn't taken soon, its possible regulatory agencies will slap the city with penalties such as high fines.

It may be expensive to correct the violations but, if the repairs are done correctly, they'd probably be cheaper in the long run than the penalties imposed by the myriad of regulatory agencies concerned with the operation.

The city had bought time in the past by responding to letters from agencies with similar letters. They can't count on that working anymore, especially when one agency has already served notice to the city that it is in violation.

The city council had better take action on the problems quickly.

Revisions to be examined by city commission

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE - Planned revisions to the Belle Glade city code and charter will have to be closely examined by the city commission to avoid a referendum, according to city officials.

City Attorney John E. Baker told the city commission Monday night, January 24 that he will send them a letter detailing what charter provisions can be changed without a referendum. City Manager W.E. "Tom" Strang, Jr. asked Baker also send a copy of that letter to him also.

Jesus is Lord" cast meeting planned

Anyone interested in taking part in "Jesus is Lord," Clewiston's non-denominational Easter passion play, is invited to an organizational meeting in John E. Baker Auditorium's Beardsley Room 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 26.

Speaking and non-speaking parts are available, as well as behind-the-scenes roles, said writer/director Elizabeth Bass. Residents of Clewiston, Belle Glade, Pahokee, South Bay, Moore Haven, and LaBelle are invited to take part. Winter residents are also encouraged to take part. The play includes roles for adults, teenagers, and children.

"Jesus is Lord" will be presented April 14,

Mayor Thomas L. Altman said the commission can probably avoid going to a referendum, if commissioners are aware what provisions can be changed without going to the voters.

"Our objective is not to build in charter revisions that would require a referendum unless we had to," said Altman. "I just think that is the way we should pursue this thing unless something pops up that necessitates a referendum to make a change. Then we'll address them."

Officials with Municipal Code Corporation, the company revising the city charter and code, will sit with city officials in editorial conferences to discuss the revisions. Those conferences should be used to avoid charter revisions that would require a referendum, according to Altman and Baker.

Baker suggested the city commission may want to have a referendum whether or not one is required and Altman agreed that option is available to the city under home rule provisions, but added "What I'm trying to avoid is a work product coming out of this process that requires a referendum."

Baker said he has no other problems with the revision other than the 30-day proofing period.

"According to the contract, we'll have 30 days to proof it, which is fine unless you're handing the whole package at one time."

He said the new code format will be different than the current format and city officials may not be able to proof it in 30 days.

Altman said the company has always been lenient in the past and the city should be able to obtain an extension on that time if it needs more.

"That may be," said Baker. "But I'm looking at a contract. I have to look at the four corners of the contract. I don't have any problem with that, but I want something in writing."

He suggested a letter be requested from Municipal Code Corporation stating a proof reading extension can be granted to the city.

The choir will begin practicing Sunday, Feb. 5, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Beardsley Room. Choir practice will be each Sunday thereafter. Dennis Goodwin will be assisting with the choir again this year.

Another need is for musicians. Among those who will be taking part are Jenny Miller and Paula Swaford. Actors will practice Sunday afternoon and Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Officers installed

BELLE GLADE - The mother advisor of the Rainbow Girls, Lens Parker, accompanied new officers, Robbie Woodham, sang "You Light Up My Life" and Susie Alford, the worthy advisor addressed the group.

The welcome was given by Ellen Clark.

Housing

Jones said that before coming to Belle Glade, she had expected the majority of applications to be for apartments and was not sure to what extent the program would help rooming houses. "I'll just have to think about it a lot and take it on an individual case basis," she said.

Preference for the loans would be given to landlords who house elderly, or families, she said.

Landlords asked what the response would be to apartments or rooms which house several people, not necessarily families.

Jones said she would have to follow HUD rules and probably could not accept an application for a small unit which houses several people.

One landlord said that often a room will be rented to one person, who then turns around and brings in several friends without notifying the landlord.

"If you're letting you have no control from the beginning. I don't know if I can help you," said Jones.

Landlords should get leases and then evict those tenants who violate the lease by bringing in more people to live in their unit, she said.

"You say legally, only two persons for room," said Martin. "Legally, we cannot enter that person's room at night to see how many Haitians or Jamaicans moved in while we were away."

Martin added that these lifestyles are brought from the individuals' native islands and can't be stopped.

"We do not rent to more than one or two people," agreed another landlord.

I've rented to them because I feel they could not discriminate. If you want me to, I'd be very happy to discriminate."

Barry Underwood, city building inspector, said usually a landlord can tell which type of person would be a good tenant. Landlords should only rent to tenants that they are confident will follow specified guidelines, he said.

"You have rights under section 475 of Florida statutes to inspect anything you have, if you give them notice," he added.

One landlord in the audience responded that those people who cannot find rooms or are evicted often end up sleeping in buses and cardboard boxes.

"I feel bad about all that," said Jones. She said there may be need for new construction, but that was outside the jurisdiction of the rehabilitation program.

The choice of whether rehabilitation funds come solely from HUD, or a mixture of these funds and private funds, remains with the landlord, Jones said, adding that some setups work better with different cases.

If a landlord provides some private funds and borrows some HUD funds, HUD will not provide more than 50 percent of what is needed.

If rent is raised because of cost of rehabilitating property, some assistance may be available through HUD, said Jones.

"I'm glad you brought that up," said one landlord. "Because I have people who rented from me for over 30 years, elderly people. And there's no way I'm gonna force them out. What assurance do I have..."

"My word. My word," said Jones.

"Well, how long is your word gonna last?" In other words, I don't want to get six months down the road and say 'Well, I'm sorry,'" responded the landlord.

Jones said there has been assurances from Washington that funding for displaced people will be available as long as HUD exists.

The timetable for rehabilitation projects varies, Jones said. One 17-unit rehabilitation was just finished in 160 days, she said.

She said she'll have to take applications and review them on an individual basis.

In all those instances really exist that we've talked about, I'm not sure I can help you," said Jones. "Even though I may not be able to help all of you, maybe I can help somebody. I've been out here. I've already sighted, looked at some properties that I know we can help."

Underwood, Ganz and city building official Purvis Benjamin were also at Tuesday's meeting to answer questions.

Lovell

and explain why portables were being used when, for a comparable sum, permanent additions could be added to existing facilities.

Lovell also expressed concern over the number of students in Palm Beach County who are scoring so low in the SAT tests that they were ineligible for many of the state college legacies.

He said parents should be kept accurately informed as to whether their child is on grade level at all times.

Lovell said students are being taught at a grade level two levels lower than the grade they are in.

Representative James Watt questioned why figures presented by Lovell indicate Palm Beach County students are taking the SAT testing at a lower rate than students statewide.

The SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) is one of the two most widely used college entrance exams and only 28 percent of Palm Beach County seniors took the test in 1983.

Statewide, 38 percent of Florida's seniors took the SAT. Lovell presented figures indicating 61 percent of the seniors in New York took the test.

Watt said more Palm Beach County students need to take the SAT and ACT, although the college entrance exams.

He said he is concerned that there has been much said about the poor quality of education in the United States and the need for more scientists and engineers.

"Without taking one of these tests," Watt said, "you can't get into college and without college, you can't become an engineer. You can become a technician but not an engineer."

"Some of this is going to be painful," he said. "Some of this will be shocking, but we need to establish a history to see where we are before we can improve our schools.

"To improve our schools, we need to know where we are. I don't believe we know where we are now."

Lovell said the cost of the SAT was $9 per test and that cost was paid by the student, although he said there was a waiver if the student didn't have the money.

Watt suggested that when the school board meets with the delegation at the next general meeting, the board be asked to encourage as many seniors as possible to take the exams.

He said that if necessary, the board should find some means of paying the fees for those students who can't afford them.

Lovell cautioned the delegation that if more students take the SAT and ACT, the average grades would probably be lower, not higher.

Pahokee sewage

Oliver P. Board, supervisor over domestic waste permitting with DER, wrote in the most recent letter that samples collected in December had been analyzed and showed that the plant does not comply with permit standards.

Some of the deficiencies pointed out in the letter included:

A leak in a valve which results in primary sewage being discharged to the ground.

One blower was operating with excessive noise and vibration.
Blowers valves were leaking oil.
Several leakers in the manifolding system.
Numerous inoperable air header valves.
Uneven air distribution in aeration and digester tanks, indicating clogged, or broken diffusers in the system.

Cross said this was one area where repairs have been made, as the digester tanks have been cleaned.

Air leaks in sand filters.
Some substance effluent values using a set correction factor were calculated incorrectly.

Records of incubator and oven temperatures were not being maintained.

Analytical balance is not serviced on a regular basis.

No records were being maintained of balance accuracy checks.

The earlier report from the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services had pointed out the lack of certified class C operators at the facility.

Cross said he hoped to begin advertising for C operators by the end of the week.

In a related action, Pahokee Chamber of Commerce directors asked council members, through a letter, to "do whatever is necessary to correct the problems affecting the quality of the water."

The letter noted current water quality is not conducive to either new business and residents, or potential newcomers.

Council President Ada Conley commended directors on their concern, saying, "I hope you continue to be concerned and push us whenever necessary to do what we can."

The council is trying its best to resolve water problems, Conley assured directors, noting some improvement has been made, although more progress is needed.

In other comments made at the Farm Bureau luncheon, Messersmith asked for the support of the bureau members for a bill he will file on behalf of the Eastern Palm Beach County Farm Bureau.

Messersmith said the bill amends the farm bill he sponsored last year.

That bill protects farmers from lawsuits filed by anyone who may move next to a farm and then object to the odors and noise required to farm.

Messersmith said the amendment will extend the same protection to farm support businesses such as packing houses and crop dusters.

As the law now reads, it only protects operations on the farm itself.

Experiences of a beginning Glades bass fisherman

By TOM KISKEN

After my second reel of the day had produced an incredibly complex snarl, I began to wonder if fishing was the sport for me.

A newcomer to the fishing game, I originally thought I'd be able to get a fresh angle on the sport. So a couple of months ago, I had signed up to be an observer in Jan. 15. Bill Branch Chevrolet Grand Classic tournament.

Pairings of fishermen and observers were drawn out of a hat at the tournament banquet Friday night. Jim Well's, of Clewiston, drew my name and unknowingly took on the challenge to introduce me to his sport.

The first thing I discovered about fisherman is their insatiable.

Jim told me to meet him at the marina at about 6 ante meridiem, or a.m., or in the morning, or four hours before my brain is operable.

Only through remarkable fortitude and an unyielding commitment to my job, (never know if an editor may read this) I made it to Angler's Marina before the crack of dawn.

I think Jim had his first premonition of what was in store for him, when he spotted me buying my very first fishing license minutes before we shoved off.

With rod, graciously donated by a friend, in one hand, and camera in the other, I was about as ready as I was going to get.

The lake that early Sunday morning was dark, foggy, cold and very rough. In fact the weather was so bad, that Jim and several other anglers decided to wait out the fog near Clewiston.

We had chosen Coot's Bay in Jim's bass boat, my first ride in this type of boat.

I had built up some serious doubts about bass boats beginning at Friday night, when an angler had asked Larry Douglas, tourism director, if observers had to bring back alive.

Fortunately, Jim decided to keep me around and took it easy with the boat. (A couple hours later, may have had second thoughts about this kindness.)

Still, as Jim opened up the boat, the combination of wind, speed and fog temporarily flooded me. My back went flat against the seat, with legs flung out in front, life preserver vest ripped open and glasses misted over.

BELLE GLADE —

Computer terminals and a car topped the Belle Glade City Commission's shopping list at Tuesday's regular meeting.

Commissioners voted to request bids on used terminals and also moved to purchase a Chevrolet Cavalier for the planning department.

About $3,000 has been appropriated for computer terminals. Commissioners agreed to investigate spending this money on used terminals, rather than on new equipment as previously discussed.

Assistant Finance Director Bill Underwood reported that used terminals could be purchased for about $200-$300 apiece. New equipment would cost about $1,500 per unit, he noted.

City Manager W.E. "Tom" Strang, Jr. said if commissioners decide to purchase the used equipment, they would be able to acquire more units than originally planned. Units could be installed in the city hall, city garage and other locations, he added.

Underwood said he could install the used equipment himself, saving the city installation fees.

Commissioner George Goforth Jr. expressed concern that accepting second hand equipment could be a risk.

Underwood assured commissioners that any purchased equipment would be physically checked before being accepted.

Commissioners agreed to spend $6,499.50 to buy a Chevy Cavalier on state contract.

Strang said a similar car would cost $8,500 to $9,000 from local dealers.

Some $7,000 was appropriated in the budget for the purchase.

Goforth suggested commissioners consider saving even more money by purchasing a bit after I got over the initial shock, I relaxed a bit and eventually even began to enjoy the ride.

Once out at Coot's Bay, we both began to fish. Jim took the bow and I set myself up (just for what I sure didn't know) at the stern.

With a confident, strong flick of the wrist, I tossed my line into the water and then looked with horror at my reel which was spewing line all around me.

So began an all day battle with the ever present snarl. At first my snarls weren't too bad, just a misfied loop here and there which I could easily fix.

However, as the day (more accurately the first hour) wore on my problems began to compound each other and my reel was beginning to disintegrate with string.

Once in a great while, I'd get things straightened out long enough to hook an odd weed or two.

And then it happened. I was struggling through an intricate knot in my line, hook dangling in the water behind me, when my rod began to bend.

Started, I turned to find the last thing I expected on the end of the line—a bass. Throwing my snarled line to the side, I began the valiant struggle to land the two, no five, no ten-pound monster.

Victory was short lived, as the bass popped its head out of the water, saw who was on either end of the line, splashed a little water in my face and broke my line.

And that was that, the bass swam away and I was left with a knot enveloping my leg and a hooked line.

Actually, my bass was the only hit either Jim, or I had in Coot's Bay. After a couple hours of searching for fish, Jim decided to head out to Moonshine Bay despite the fog.

Here, Jim's luck improved. Almost instantly, he hooked a bass. A few minutes later, he caught it in his second.

Fishing only the lake vegetation, Jim would cast his line once at each clump of grass. Maneuvering the boat with the trolling motor, he efficiently fished his way through an area, stopping only if he got a hit.

With several rods ready to use, Jim switched between worm and lure. When the worm was the city's pension plan, Foster and Foster son said needed changes would be discussed with Foster and Foster and then brought up again at the commission's next meeting Feb. 6.

Other items in the letter will also be addressed, Anderson said, and prepared for discussion at the Feb. 6 meeting.

In a related matter, commissioners cancelled an agreement with Jim, Jim would leave it temptingly still for a moment, then slowly reel it in, jerking the line occasionally to simulate life.

Using the lure, Jim's method changed, and the reel line moved rapid as the lure literally swam back to the boat.

With the slightest nibble, Jim reacted instantly. Anticipation flooded his face as he would freeze action and leave the worm or plug still for a brief second. Then boom, he'd yank the line, usually coming up with a bass at the end.

Having hooked the bass, Jim wasted no time bringing it in and getting back to the next one. Obviously, he was a tourney fisherman, looking for as many fish as he could get as soon as possible.

Encouraged by Jim's haul, I decided to give it another shot.

Abandoning my tangled rod, I accepted Jim's ill advised offer to try one of his rods.

It looked easy enough to use, just release the catch, cast and lock it. First cast worked fine, second not also, but then with each consecutive try I noticed the pickup line on my reel would get a bit more tangled.

A friend had told me the day before, not to use an open faced reel because of the difficulty at keeping the line straight.

As Jim can attest, forgot.

Only after I had, hopefully only temporarily, disabled the line, did I realize the thumb had to be used to control the cast.

By the time, I saw how to cast the line, I was too discouraged to try again. So I laid the rod down to I'm sure Jim's concealed pleasure and picked up my camera.

Time was a-wasting in the tourney and Jim was still three-shy of the limit. He hooked one nice size five-pounder in the last hour, but that was it.

So, about eight hours after initially heading out, we travelled back with five fish weighing about 15 pounds, two scrambled rods, a dissatisfied fisherman and a relieved observer.

Although I haven't ripped out my calendar book to set my next fishing date, I'm sure I'll probably try it again. If for nothing else, to claim that hook swimming somewhere out in Coot's Bay.

A Pinch of Salt

On the January 28 block of my calendar is this note: "Cease-fire ends Viet Nam War 1973." I remember the day, as I am sure you do.

We all rejoiced that our military forces were coming home, living under a cloud of confusion. What was the meaning of war? Should the United States have been involved? Were we trying to win a war or just boost a stagnant economy?

For me this is not the time or place to make political statements on the Viet Nam War. But there is one truth I do want to make clear: Peace must be paid for.

During the late 60's and early 70's there were many who could not understand that immortal truth. We had enjoyed peace in our great land for over a century and had forgotten that peace comes as the result of struggle.

Peace is a funny thing. Some have it while war is raging and others never possess it, even in the most tranquil setting.

Inner peace, like military peace, must be paid for. But it cannot be purchased with a doctor's prescription or with the down payment on a new ocean front property.

Inner peace was paid for in full when Jesus died for you on Calvary's cross. Paul tells us in Colossians 2:13, 14 that the certificate of debt, the charges against you, was nailed to Jesus cross. He took the rap.

"Therefore having been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." (Romans 5:1) Now that peace is paid for and it is yours, "Let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts." (Colossians 3:15)

Kotowicz completes training

Susan Kotowicz, M.S.W., therapist at the Western Palm Beach County Mental Health Clinic, Inc., has completed a one week training program at the Interdisciplinary Rape Science Training Institute of the University of Miami's Foster Rehabilitation

Jackson Memorial Hospital.

The

training ranged from forensic techniques to treatment of sex offenders and included visits to a Rape Treatment Center and to the South Florida State Hospital Sex Offender Rehabilitation Program. Child sexual abuse and incest were topics included in the workshop along with local law enforcement and human service personnel at workshops to be conducted in the treatment of adult victims of sexual assault.

The Mental Health Clinic is planning to make the information obtained from the workshop available to subjects related to the treatment of adult victims of sexual assault.

The Mental Health Clinic is planning to make the information obtained from the workshop available to local law enforcement and human service personnel at workshops to be conducted in the near future. Interested parties can contact Kotowicz at the clinic at 996-8812 or 996-8814.

Whimsey attracts readers

By JEFF BATER

The absurd things that Ailsa Dewing writes about in her column really do happen.

"I could never dream up the stupid, crazy things that really happen to people," says Dewing, whose column appears each week in The Clewiston News, the Glades County Democrat and the Herald-Observer of Belle Glade. "You'd have to have a tremendous imagination."

Some of those columns have been collected in her first book, "The Rapid Transit Fast Food No-Deposit No-Return Reader." Published last month, it was published by Rainbow Books - Betty Wright of Moore Haven, Wright is distributing the book locally, statewide and nationally, according to Dewing.

Ailsa's columns tell of the peculiarities and unexpected mishaps of modern life. She says she is one of those persons who stumble into strange situations once in a while.

There was the trip to Europe where she met a few friends and toured the continent. Nothing unusual happened to them, she says, but her luck began to run out around Italy.

In Rome, her passport was stolen. And in Bangladesh, her money was stolen.

"Some people go to see the opera or the ruins," Ailsa says. "I got taken to police stations."

Greece was a problem, too. Not planning to go to Italy while in America, Ailsa had not been inoculated for cholera. En route to Greece, she had passed through Naples during a cholera outbreak. When her ship docked in Greece, passengers were asked whether they had been inoculated.

Ailsa was quarantined. Officials held her overnight in Patras and gave two shots.

"Instead of staying, I said I wanted to get out of this country," she says.

After Greece came Spain, where she had a nice time—but not before passing through Naples again. This time, her soap was stolen. "It was kind of a magnet for trouble," she says.

"Those things (absurdities) happen to a lot of other people," she says. "They can identify with my column."

She says her columns are about incidents which can happen anywhere to anyone.

"Maybe I am more prone, but it can't be much more different than what happens to others because there's no empathy if I were going out causing my own trouble."

Ailsa says her column ideas stem from her experiences, experiences of others and from the "One thing people ask is, 'Did this really happen?' Basically, yes. Everything I have ever written about happened."

However, Ailsa confesses that from time to time she does juggle around minor details.

"I take a literary license and exaggerate or I make the thing which happened in one place happen in another," she says.

For those who wonder about the source of the name of Ailsa's column, "And What Not," she says it had been an expression used by her publishers. He would say, "And what not?" when referring to "anything," she says.

"The idea of the column was you could throw anything in it," Ailsa said.

Ailsa's career began as a reporter in New York. She moved to Florida, was a reporter for the Miami Beach Times and started a column there called "The Bifocal View." A few years later she came to Hammell Newspapers of Florida where she has been a reporter and an editor. These days, her newspaper writing is limited to her column.

"One of the problems is I can't full-time report and have any ambition left to sit down and write for fun and profit," she says. "My choice has been to write this kind of thing (a column) that I can do."

She says she liked the idea of a book because it has lasting value.

"Did you ever feel it's throwaway, mullet wrapper, that newspapers are tomorrow's fish wrapping? You create something and you hate to see it disposed of if it has any value."

"Then, with a book, you find out if it is mullet wrapping," she says. "If no one buys the book, it's better to wrap fish in it."

In the wake of "Rapid Transit," another book is underway. Ailsa says it will be a spoof of Florida.

Editor's note: Copies of "Rapid Transit" are available at the following news outlets: The Clewiston News, Belle Glade - The Herald-Observer, Ft. Pierce - The Sun, Moore Haven - Rainbow Gardens and Rainbow Books.

Copies may also be ordered from Rainbow Books, Post Office Box 1069, Moore Haven, Fla. 33471-1069 for $6 plus $1.25 for postage and handling.

Club has guest speaker

PAHOKEE -- The Division of Forestry and how it affected the Pahokee community.

President Tina Elliott presided over the meeting that followed.

The club secretary read an invitation from the Belle Glade Garden Club to attend a Valentine's Day party, February 9.

Members passed a motion to plant a tree honoring Veronica Harrington. She had prepared the club's year books for several years.

The president announced plans for members to visit the Edison home in Fort Myers, Tuesday, April 17, if details could be worked out. Many members expressed a desire to attend.

Edna Pickett and Sue Rozelle served refreshments. Guests attending were Dee Maxson of Canal Point and Doris Wetherington of Pahokee.

Club tours museum

BELLE GLADE -- Belle Glade Garden Study Club members drove to Miami, Friday, Jan. 13 and toured the former James Dering estate.

The property now belongs to Dade County and is a museum.

"Vizcaya," as it is now known, is on Biscayne Bay and was built in the style of an Italian Renaissance villa in

The formal gardens took eight years to complete and were of special interest to the group, according to the property chairman.

Nine members of the study club took the tour.

The next meeting of the club will be Friday, Feb. 10 at the home of Edith VanLaningham.

Garden club views film

The Chosen Garden Club met at the Belle Glade Municipal Library, Wednesday, Jan. 18.

Guest speaker Martha Allison presented a film on the Mount St. Helen's volcanic eruption.

Earlier in the year, Vickie Garcia, daughter of George and Maria Garcia of Belle Glade, clinched a place in national competition after competing in the "Strange Bedfellows" category.

short business meeting.

Members decided to have a plant sale at the Ben Franklin parking lot Friday, Feb. 10.

Those present were: Sally Teague, Clara Bedsale, Ruby Kirk, Marie Scheinfeld, Madeleine Martin, Hazel Litchfield, Violet Felsing, Alease Lane, Leta Lanier and guest Martha Allison.

The choir performed selections that ranged from secular works of the masters to "The Wizard."

After the concert, the group left Belle Glade to continue its nor-

Chapter held regular meeting

Xi Alpha Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi members had their regular monthly meeting Thursday, January 6, at Florida Federal with President Florence Keen.

Kay Sears presented a program on "Growing Old Gracefully." A steak supper Thursday, January 19, at the home of Clark Keen, Doris Wetherington, and Ellis Wilkinson completed the January activities for the chapter.

In addition to the host and hostess who were assisted by Dot Sims, Eva and Melvin Spooner, Charlotte Walston, and Beth and Harold Wilkinson.

Also present were Ada and Coleman Conley, Gethie and Lewis Friend, Dorothy Hillier, Ethel Johnson, Florence and Manning Keen, Davis and Diane Bryan, and Bob, respectively. Lane, Elsie and E.D. guest.

"GRAMMAR HOSPITAL" was a unique way of learning recently at Rosenwald Elementary in South Bay."

"Grammar Hospital" utilized at Rosenwald

SOUTH BAY — Barbara Jay's fourth grade class at Rosenwald Elementary has been approaching learning in a new way lately.

The class has been participating in a method of learning called "Grammar Hospital". The program is designed to teach reading, English and health lessons in a hospital setting.

According to Jay, each student uses a scalpel (their pencil) as their surgical tool and the "patients" are the worksheets.

"They perform surgery on their patients by completing the worksheets. If the student's worksheet (patient) has three or more errors on it, it comes back D.O.A. (dead on arrival) on the top of it," said Jay.

She said the students must then perform an "autopsy" on the incorrect paper to see how their patient died. Each student and the teacher wore surgical masks during the lessons.

The class learned about the workings of a hospital during the lessons and discussed some of their own hospital experiences.

Filmstrips were shown, according to Jay, and operations were discussed.

"Grammar Hospital" was designed by Mary Ellen Frazier, Chuck Wallen and Judy Elliott, all from Grissom Elementary in Munice, Indiana.

Jay gave trophies to the top four outstanding performers for number of correctly finished assignments and certificates of achievement to the other students who participated.

Those students participating were: Clarence Adams, Calvin Barrett, Ruben Belmores, Sam Boyer, Lisa Brouet, Jaimie Cisneros, Vontricia Collins, Veronica Corona, Shereen Dukes, Adella Hemans, Katrisha Jackson, Leon King, Nathaniel Mosley, Israel Montemayor, Phillip Olivias, Johnny Roddy, Vantardo Roker, Helder Wright.

PBJC enrollment increase

Palm Beach Junior College enrollment went up slightly this term despite the loss of nearly 100 students when state funding for Glades Correctional Institute students was discontinued.

More students at Lake Worth, Boca Raton and Palm Beach Gardens offset losses in the Glades.

Total enrollment at all four campuses was exactly even with a year ago at 12,713 — but credit enrollment was up by 91 to 11,490 from 11,399 a year ago.

A year ago there were 95 students enrolled at PBJC Glades from GCI before funding for state prisoners was eliminated by the legislature. There are now none enrolled there.

But gains of 3.3 percent at PBJC Central and part-time credit students greatly outnumbered full-time students, 8,284 to 3,204.

"We are pleased that the student enrollment continues at a high level," said Dr. Edward M. Eissey, PBJC president. "It is encouraging that we continue to grow in spite of the loss of the GCI evening students."

School observes Arbor Day

Arbor Day was observed at Pahokee Elementary School January 17 with a program and tree planting ceremony, according to the assistant principal Mary H. Rainey.

More than 30 students attended the program which included selected readings and singing of Smokey the Bear. The guest speaker was Jim Brenner of Urban Forestry.

A portion of the program was given to the history of Arbor Day and the importance of trees was stressed.

Literature on the importance of conservation was made available by the Florida Department of Agriculture and Con-

SIXTH GRADE Glades Day student Kassie Simonson placed second in World Card at the academic games and is eligible to join the national team.

HOSA meeting set

Members of HOSA (Health Occupations Students of America) Club at Pahokee High School are preparing for the Spring Region V HOSA meeting to be at Coconut Creek High School, Ft. Lauderdale, March 16th.

Region V is composed of Palm Beach, Hendry and Broward counties. The Pahokee club with 18 members is the only active club in Palm Beach and Hendry counties. Broward County is represented by 23 high schools with a membership of 420.

Competitive events will be held at the spring meeting. Pahokee students hope to have competitors in the following areas of competition: medical spelling, medical terminology, prepared speaking, extemporaneous speaking, extemporaneous health display, job seeking skills and HOSA brain

All are individual events with the exception of the brain team which is composed of a team of four students of one school competing against a team of four students of one school competing against a team from another.

Winners at region will advance to state competition which will be held at Miami Beach March 25-26. Pahokee's HOSA Club advisor is Joan Anderson.

School wins accreditation

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, through its Commission on Elementary Schools, awarded continuing accreditation to Canal Point Elementary School at its 88th annual meeting, December 11 to 14. Founded in 1895, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools is one of six regional accrediting bodies in the United States. More than 11,000 member public and private universities, colleges, junior colleges, occupational institutions, secondary schools, middle schools, and elementary schools enroll approximately five million students.

Drama contest at PBJC

BELLE GLADE — The Palm Beach County Drama Association will perform its annual one act play festival at the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center, Belle Glade, Friday, January 27.

The top winning shows will be presented free to the public at 8 p.m. at the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center, Belle Glade, Friday, January 27.

The Thespians at Glades Central are presenting "Tales of Trickery", a one-act Indonesian play consisting of three stories. The director is Sarah Bennett.
